Guidelines for authors

1. Communication and Media invites professionals, academics, students and activists in communication, media studies, journalism, the audiovisual world, culture and related areas to submit articles and reviews in the areas of communications, culture, the audiovisual world and journalism.
2. Communication and Media only receives original and unpublished articles in Spanish or English. Material previously published or simultaneously under evaluation in other publications is not accepted.
3. The maximum number of authors per article is three. If necessary, the other collaborators will be mentioned in a note.
4. All manuscripts must be submitted through the Open Journal System (OJS) software available at the following link, completing the requested data. Texts sent in any other way will not be reviewed.
5. Articles must be submitted in Microsoft Word format, single line spacing, Arial font and size 11. They should be between 5,500 and 7,000 words long (including references, tables, images, graphs, appendices, and notes). The title will not exceed 15 words; The abstract is no more than 200 words and a minimum of 4 and a maximum of 5 keywords must be included. The title, abstract, and keywords should be included in Spanish and English. The journal will not review texts that do not meet these requirements. Attachment names must not have an accent or "ñ".
6. The abstract of the article must contain, at least, the problem, theoretical framework, methodology and the main results of the research.
7. The structure and style of each article will be reviewed and evaluated on its merits. We recognize that the field registers diverse scriptural and stylistic strategies. However, the manuscript must be clearly organized. We suggest a structure that includes "Introduction, Theoretical Framework, Methodological Framework, Results, Conclusions, Notes and References" or "Introduction, Methodology, Results, Discussion, Notes and References". The structure of the article may vary in the case of theoretical articles. All references must be included in the same section (bibliography, documents, press articles or audiovisual material, among others). The DOI should be included when available.

9. To ensure blind peer review, files submitted for review should be anonymous. Please remove any authorship in both the document content and the file properties. Indicate if the article is sent to the Monographic section or if it is a Miscellaneous article.
10. Reviews must be a maximum length of 1,500 words. They are unpublished texts that address recent publications (no more than two years old) and relevant to the journal's field of interest. Include the bibliographic record of the material (text, films, documentary or others) reviewed (Authorship, title of the book, city of publication, publisher, year and number of pages). Attach the cover image of the reviewed publication (jpg or png format, minimum resolution of 250 dpi).
11. In a separate document from the article, the author, as well as the co-authors, must include the following information: name of the main author and co-authors, a brief summary that includes the highest academic degree achieved, institutional affiliation and institutional email. Likewise, the last two relevant publications, the ORCID number, the sources of funding and the roles according to the CRediT taxonomy must be incorporated.
In the case of articles with multiple authors, a declaration of authorship based on the CRediT taxonomy must be submitted, specifying up to three roles for each researcher. These roles must transparently reflect the contributions made during the development of the work. The 14 roles defined by CRediT are: Conceptualization, Data Curation, Formal Analysis, Acquisition of Funds, Research, Methodology, Project Management, Resources, Software Development, Supervision, Validation, Visualization, Writing-Original Draft, and Writing-Revision and Editing. Example: Author 1. Conceptualization, Formal Analysis, Methodology. Author 2. Project Management, Resources, Software Development.
12. For accepted manuscripts, the Communication and Media editorial staff reserves the right to make any style corrections it deems necessary.

About the body of the text:

1. The title must use Arial 18 font, bold, lowercase (initial capital letter) and without a period.
2. Texts must use Arial 11 typography, justified to the left and right, with single line spacing in the text, references and notes. Word files will be accepted.
3. The subtitles will be numbered successively. 1. Lowercase bold; 1.1. Lowercase bold; 1.1.1. Lowercase italics. Do not use margins or separate periods.
4. Only the titles of printed publications (name of newspaper, for example), audiovisual productions (title of a documentary, for example) and foreign words (accountability, for example) should be in italics. We suggest not using excessive italics, quotation marks or notes.
5. Number the pages in the lower right corner.
6. Images and illustrations must have a minimum resolution of 250 dpi. They should be included in the main document and also sent as separate files. They must be numbered consecutively according to their nature (Graph n; Table n; Figure n., etc.). The source of each image, table or graph must be indicated. Each of these files should be named according to the type of image or illustration and its numbering provided in the article (e.g., Graphic01; Photography01...). The main file must indicate where each image or illustration should be inserted, according to its numbering.

References:

1. All articles should be prepared following the most recent version of the American Psychological Association (APA).
2. All references should be included in a single section at the end of the article, regardless of their nature (book, academic article, working paper, press article, audiovisual medium or website, for example) and should be organized alphabetically. Where available, the DOI should be indicated.
3. Include only references cited, paraphrased or mentioned in the text.

Communication and Media will return to their authors the submissions that do not comply with the requirements established herein.
